Offshore oil deal draws fire

Environmentalists say it gives oil companies a 'foot in the door'

by GUION M. KOVNER
Tribune Editor

An agreement that introduces offshore oil drilling to the North Coast — hailed as a "great compromise" by a spokesman for Congressman Douglas Bosco — got negative reviews from environmentalists.

"It's like being told you can save Yosemite Valley as long as you give up Halfdome," said Lionel Gambill, an Occidental area resident and member of a group called Friends of the Coast.

"It's a disaster," Santa Rosa environmentalist Barb Schneiders said. "We've lost Humboldt and they get a test hole in Bodega."

"They" are the oil companies, which will get a chance in early 1987 to bid for drilling rights on 1,350 square miles of territory off the California coast.

An agreement negotiated by California's coastal congressman and U.S. Interior Secretary Donald Hodel opens 150 tracts in Northern, Central and Southern California to federal leasing for exploration and development of offshore oil and natural gas resources.

Previously protected areas

Ninety-nine of the tracts are in the Eel River Basin, off Humboldt County from the mouth of the Eel River (south of Eureka) to the Del Norte County line. (One tract is nine square miles.)

The 150 tracts lie in areas that were previously protected by a congressional moratorium on offshore oil development in California.

In exchange for getting 150 tracts into the lease sale schedule for 1987, Secretary Hodel agreed to leave most of the rest of the coast alone for the next 15 years.

"We gave up a small portion of the coast to get long-term protection of the rest," Bruce Taylor, Bosco's press secretary, said Tuesday from Washington, D.C.

He called the agreement, endorsed by Bosco and Rep. Barbara Boxer of Marin County, a "great compromise."

Local environmentalists see it more as a great sellout.

'Foot in the door'

"Once the oil companies have their foot in the door, they're going to take the whole coast," Gambill said Wednesday.

"Fifteen years gives them time to consolidate their stranglehold on the two northern counties (Humboldt and Del Norte)," he said. "Then they'll come south."

While Taylor pointed to the fact that the compromise spares Sonoma and Mendocino counties from offshore oil rigs, Gambill said that was not the issue.

"This is not just our back yard," he said. "The whole coast is a precious resource. It should be kept inviolate."

"It's only the first step," Schneiders said, noting that the agreement allows the oil companies to drill one test hole in the Point Arena (Mendocino County), Bodega (Sonoma County) and Santa Cruz Basins during the next 15 years.

Taylor said these holes would be for testing only, but the environmentalists say the oil companies will use what they find to press for more drilling rights on the North Coast.

'Eleventh hour' deal

Along with the 99 tracts in the Eel River Basin, the agreement opens up 51 tracts located from Morro Bay south to Oceanside.

The agreement will be put into legislation to be enacted by Sept. 30, Taylor said.

Hodel and the congressmen struck their deal at the "eleventh hour," Taylor said, announcing the result Tuesday morning, just before the House Appropriations Committee was set to vote on a

CHAMBER SEEKS DONATIONS

Is river flow worth $1?

Is an adequate summertime water level in the Russian River worth a dollar to local businesses?

The Healdsburg Chamber of Commerce hopes merchants and business owners say yes — and send in a dollar apiece to help pay for the services of Sacramento water rights attorney Daniel Gallery.

Gallery represented the Russian River Water Rights Protective Association, a 25-year-old non-profit group revived in 1984 to fight for local water rights, at hearings by the state Water Resources Control Board on a proposal by the Sonoma County Water Agency which would reduce summertime flows in the Russian River by as much as one-third.

When the hearings concluded in March, the bill for legal fees and engineering studies connected with the water rights case totalled $44,250, of which some $36,000 is still outstanding.

'Real obligation'

In a letter sent to Chamber of Commerce members last week,

Executive Director Helendale Barrett announced that the chamber's share of the unpaid bill has been set at $450, and that only $150 was available from chamber coffers for the "unbudgeted" expense.

"The board feels a real obligation to pay this assessment," Barrett said, "but at the present time can only allow for $150 of this unbudgeted item."

Barrett hopes to raise the remaining $300 one dollar at a time from chamber members.

"One dollar from each of our members would solve our problem," her letter said. "Any amount will be gratefully accepted and forwarded to the association to aid in this effort."

Job well done

Barrett restated the chamber's opposition to any attempt to curtail summertime flows in the Russian River, and commended attorney Gallery for a job well done.

"While final decisions have not been made," she said, "Dan Gallery represented our interests very well. It now appears that the river flow will be maintained, at

Surgeons reattach injured boy's foot

Fourteen-year-old Anthony Molina was listed in "serious" condition Thursday in the pediatric intensive care unit at UC Davis Medical Center, following surgery on the injuries he sustained in a bicycle and car collision on Old Redwood Highway Monday evening.

A Healdsburg boy, Molina underwent surgery Tuesday morning to reattach his left foot, which was severed when he rode his bicycle into the path of a car.

A hospital spokesperson said the surgery had been "successful." The reimplantation was performed by Dr. Howard Klein, assistant professor in plastic surgery at the medical center, who was not available for comment.

Molina was back in the operating room Wednesday afternoon to repair damage to his right arm, where he suffered some broken bones.

Molina and his friend, David Tafoya, 13, also of Healdsburg, were riding their bicycles southbound on Old Redwood Highway, on the right side of the road.

Luis Sedeno, Jr., 17, was also driving south when the two bicyclists turned in front of his car, according to a California Highway patrol report. Sedeno, also of Healdsburg, sideswiped Tafoya and broadsided Molina, who was thrown through the front windshield of the car.

Several people from nearby homes were the first at the accident scene, and one Old Redwood Highway resident, John MacKenzie, credits local man Dave Lewers with saving Molina's life.

Lewers was swimming with his children in the backyard when he heard the impact of the accident. When he rushed out front, Lewers said he saw Sedeno's passenger, 14-year-old Sam Arreguin, getting out of the car.

"He (Molina) was lying in the front seat and I could tell right away he was missing a foot."

Lewers said he tried to calm Molina, who was acting violently and cutting himself worse on the shattered windshield glass. "I started applying pressure to the artery on his leg," Lewers said.

Nielsen, Farm Bureau call for crackdown on pesticides after watermelon poisonings

In the wake of California's watermelon poisonings, State Senator Jim Nielsen and the California Farm Bureau are calling for a crackdown on farmers who use pesticides illegally.

Nielsen, a former salesman for an agricultural chemicals company, plans to introduce urgency legislation increasing the civil and criminal penalties against growers who violate pesticide regulations.

The Senate Republican leader, whose district includes Healdsburg, wants to boost the fine for illegal pesticide use from the $100-$1,000 range to $1,000-$10,000 for the first offense. The maximum jail sentence would go from six months to one year, and the current civil liability limit of $500 would also be increased.

Nielsen, who is still a consultant to the same ag chemicals firm, said stiffer penalties for pesticide violations "are necessary not only to ensure the public health and safety, but also to ensure the vitality of the agricultural industry in California."

Henry Voss, president of the California Farm Bureau Federation, also called for strong state action related to the watermelon poisonings.

"The public demands and deserves an untainted food supply," Voss said in an editorial in the Farm Bureau's weekly newspaper, Ag Alert.

Voss said illegal use of pesticides "means an attempt to obtain economic advantage over a competitor who adheres to the rules and regulations."

The watermelon episode proved costly to many growers, as one-third of the state's $30 million watermelon crop was ordered destroyed.

Illegal use of aldicarb, a pesticide marketed under the name Temik, is believed to be responsible for more than 280 cases of watermelon poisoning reported in the western United States since July 4, Nielsen said.

Aldicarb is not registered for use of watermelons in California, but is legally used on other crops.

"Gives farmers bad name" Nielsen said California Department of Food and Agriculture chief Clare Berryhill "feels certain" that a misapplication of aldicarb caused the poisonings.

Misuse of ag chemicals "gives farmers a bad name," Nielsen's press secretary, Pat Chartrand, said. "Used properly, they make a lot of difference in the amount of produce we can grow."

Voss, the leader of California's largest farm group, backed Berryhill's call for tough enforcement of pesticide laws.

But he also cautioned state officials "not to shoot from the hip" in placing the blame for the watermelon poisoning.

"Reports that some of the watermelon field testing was faulty and innocent farmers were accused can only hurt the department's credibility with farmers, as well as the public," Voss said.

Chartrand said the mass destruction of watermelons was ordered because the source of the contamination was not immediately known.

Rec Commission meets at lake

Recreation Director Dayle Puckett defended the Recreation Commission's decision to meet out of town last week and go for a boat ride on Lake Sonoma.

The five-member commission is an "advisory" board to the City Council, not a policy-setting body, Puckett said.

And the only two items approved by the rec commissioners during their July 9 meeting at Lake Sonoma were subsequently ratified by the council at its regular meeting at City Hall Monday night.

Those two items were: a decision to charge $50 for use of the Villa Chanticleer's group picnic area on weekends; and an agreement by the city to sponsor the new Community Band, a step Puckett said was largely for insurance purposes.

Puckett said the commission's visit to Lake Sonoma was "a real educational session for all of us."

The wine page

In the land of Zinfandels

There were 45 Zinfandels (red) and 22 Zinfandels (white) — oh, yes, and four Zinfandels (Late Harvest) five Zinfandels (Dessert) and three Zinfandels (Rose) in the judging at the Amador County Fair this year.

The grand award went to the 1982 Fitzpatrick, Rock Hill Vineyards red Zinfandel. The special award for the best red went to a 1982 Story Vineyard, Shenandoah Valley red Zinfandel and the special award for the best white went to the 1984 Winterbrook Vineyard White Zinfandel.

Lest you get the idea that every wine in the competition was a Zinfandel of one sort or another, let's fill in right here that another special award for the Best Amador Sauvignon Blanc was awarded to the 1984 Montevina Fume Blanc.

To qualify for the competition, the wines had to be made with grapes from any of the five Sierra Foothill counties, but did not have to be produced by foothill wineries. In the Red Zinfandel class, gold medals went to Corbett Canyon (San Luis Obispo County) as well as to Fitzpatrick and Story. Only the Winterbrook received a gold in the White Zinfandel class. A 1978 Monterey Vineyard and 1983 Shenandoah Vineyards Late Harvest each took gold in the Late Harvest Zins, and two Quady Ports, an '81 and an '82, were the golds in the Dessert Division.

Other golds to add to your shopping list were presented to the 1984 Boeger Sauvignon Blanc, 1984 Montevina Fume Blanc, 1983 Madrona Chardonnay and the '82 Santino Dry Berry Select Harvest White Riesling.

Terry Moore, wine department chairman for the fair, asked for a show of hands for those interested in judging the 45 red Zins. Five judges were needed for the panel. Sixteen hands went up so numbered tickets were passed and the five lucky winners went off in delight.

The remaining judges were allowed to take seats at the remaining three tables and our group was composed of Vern Singleton of the UC/Davis enology department, winemaker Mike Lee from Kenwood Winery and three writers — Mike Dunne from the Sacramento Bee, and Rich Hinkle, prolific, many-market wordsmith, along with your Tribune scribe. We tasted the 22 White Zins and an interesting variety of other wines, starting with five Chenin Blancs.

The judging was on the Danish system — a 20-point scale. Each judge jotted down his impressions, his scoring for the wine and whether or not he would recommend it for a medal of some sort. After each judge had completed his scoring, the five gathered in a circle of chairs to discuss the wines and make the awards. All went swimmingly on the first category. The judges were pretty much in agreement as to the quality of the wines, and one-bronze (Boeger) and one silver (Granite Springs) were awarded.

Back at the judging table we discovered we had drawn the 22 white Zins, which was a delight and a challenge. Maybe there wasn't 22 absolutely different styles there, but it certainly seemed that way. Everyone agreed with the gold — except Howie, who held out for the 1984 Granite Springs, which got no award. The four silvers and four bronzes were pretty much agreed upon, although my notes show that I would have liked to see the Santino and the Herbert carry home prizes, too. All the wines were from the 1984 vintage — in a range of colors from palest salmon to a cherryish rose — not a bad wine in the lot.

Next we moved to the Cabernet Sauvignons and dissension! I obviously liked a lot of wines better than most of the other judges and had I been sole judge, there would have been four silver medals instead of just one. The only silver went to Montevina 1983 with a Shenandoah Vineyard designation.

Our final class only had two wines — both sweet reds — a 1984 Muscat and a 1982 Port, both from Shenandoah Vineyards. I rated them both the same and probably could have been talked into a bronze for each, but majority rule gave a silver to the Muscat and no award to the Port.

It was a great experience, and interesting to see how staunchly we all stood up for our favorites. Often it was a very challenging discussion (What do you mean you can't taste the cherries and cloves?!). The only regret, of course, was that you couldn't be on every panel and taste every wine, but that came later at the wine-tasting and barbecue. And that's another score on which the foothill counties people rate well — the lamb barbecue could take a medal anytime.

This is going to be a busy year in these parts. Sonoma, waking from the slumber induced by Prohibition, started stirring back to life in the late '60s and early '70s and by 1975 wineries were being bonded in rapid succession. The result, of course, is that this year there are celebrations of 10th anniversaries all over the place, with food and wine featured, music an exciting element, and every winery pouring the fine wines which made them famous. Check the activities at Alexander Valley Vineyards and across the road at Johnson's Winery. Keep your calendar handy for marking down dates for picnics and vintage car shows and wonderful wine tasting, August, in particular, will be a busy month, as all the wineries stage their galas and get ready for the crush. Pick up a Russian River Wine Road map from any of the local wineries or the chamber of commerce and watch out for flyers.

Behind the bubbles

"Behind the bubbles there is a wine," said Alain Seydoux in a rumbling baritone, lifting his glass and tasting his wine. "and this is wine."

The wine was Gratién Brut, a sparkling wine from the Loire Valley. It is made in the style of Champagne, and otherwise is a kissing cousin to Champagne, although it is made primarily from Chenin Blanc. Champagne is largely Pinot Noir and Chardonnay.

Seydoux does not say his wine is better than Champagne. Indeed, since he is affiliated with both Saumur and the Champagne region of France, he wears two hats. His firm, Gratién, Meyer, Seydoux et Cie, handles Alfred Gratién Champagne as well as sparkling Saumur.

"Champagne is still the king," he rumbled. "If it is well made, that is. If it is not very good, well, then Saumur is a very good value for the money."

He pointed out that many people like buying fancy Champagne just because it says "champagne" on the label and that in fact a good portion of true Champagne is priced too high. "they are label drinkers, they like drinking the label, not the wine inside," he said with a twinkle in his eye.

"How would you like your label? On the rocks?" he said, mockingly.

Gratién Brut Sparkling Saumur is a fine example of the crisp, dry beverage that offers complexity at a price. "it is an alternative to Champagne, not a substitute for it," said Seydoux.

Two grape varieties make up sparkling Saumur — chenin blanc and cabernet franc. The second fermentation that is used to produce the bubbles is the traditional methode champenoise that is used in Champagne. As the wine ages in the bottle, it picks up some of the same complexity found in Champagne.

Gratién Brut and other sparkling Saumur wines sell for a fraction of the price of Champagne, generally less than $10 a bottle. They usually are good value.

"I like very much the challenge of Saumur. The problem is getting people to discover it. Once they do, they like it," he said.

Gratién Brut never is vintage-dated, and he admitted that by making no vintage-dated wine, Gratién was low on the prestige ladder, since so many people assume that a vintage-dated product is better than a non-vintage product.

"We are experimenting with a little vintage-dated Gratién Brut," he admitted, "but it's only an experiment." He said Gratién Brut stands as a standard in non-Champagne French sparkling wine, which the house of Gratién has been making for 121 years.

He had almost finished our Gratién Brut. I had an ounce left in my glass. Seydoux said, "Shake it. Get the bubbles out and then taste the wine behind the bubbles." I did. He was right. There is a wine behind the bubbles.

A heavy dew is actually the portent of good weather. On cloudless nights the earth loses its heat more rapidly, and a heavier dew results.

Gold and high praises

Trentadue Winery's 1983 Merlot recently won a gold medal at the 1985 Orange County Fair and the silver and crystal awards at the Riverside Farmers Fair. The Crystal Award is given to "the wine which has won a silver medal in its classification and also received accolades from all members of the judging panel as a wine truly representing a special achievement. The Merlot was bottled this year after minimal handling and time in American Oak. Pictured here are Vic, Leo and Evelyn Trentadue.

Vintage cars and wines at Johnson's

The vintages will be rolling out — vintage cars and vintage wines — at Johnson's Alexander Valley Winery on Sunday, July 28, with contests and prizes, music indoors and out and picnicking under the trees.

For the third consecutive year, Johnson's Alexander Valley Winery is inviting those who drive vintage cars and those who just love to look at them, to participate in a day that salutes automobiles and vintage wines.

There will be a prize for each old-time car that rolls up to the winery, a chance for all visitors to vote for the most outstanding vehicle and, for added shine and excitement, Warren Lubich will perform at the vintage theatre organ, noon till 4 p.m. On the lawn, at 3 p.m., the 30-piece Healdsburg Community Band will perform marches and show tunes.

Five of the instrumentalists are Johnsons: Tom, Sr., on the drums, Ellen playing saxophone, Cindy doubling on flute and piccolo, Tommy sliding out the trombone and Charlie with baritone horn.

Tasting starts at 10 a.m. Visitors are invited to bring a picnic lunch and make a day of it. To reach Johnson's Alexander Valley Winery, take the Alexander Valley exit from Highway 101, just north of Healdsburg, and follow the road around to 8333 Highway 128.

Festivities continue till 5 p.m.

Elusive witness also faces pot charge

DA says he can convict Hansen

District Attorney Gene Tunney says he has the evidence to convict attorney Monte Hansen of growing marijuana, and will go ahead with a second trial starting Sept. 10.

"The evidence is overwhelming," Tunney told the Tribune Wednesday.

Hansen, a former deputy DA in Tunney's office who now specializes in drug defense cases, has said he will be cleared "once and for all" in the second trial.

Regardless of what happens in the upcoming trial, Tunney said he will prosecute elusive witness Larry Steele for cultivation of marijuana — and call Hansen as a witness in that case.

The DA said there are two warrants out for Steele's arrest, and that Steele will once again be called as a witness against Hansen, if Steele can be found.

If the prosecution can call Steele as a witness against Hansen, Tunney said, it can introduce as evidence Steele's statement that ties Hansen to the marijuana crop on his property.

"Enough to convict" "If he (Steele) went back and told the story he (initially) told us, it would be enough to convict (Hansen)," Tunney said.

The DA acknowledged that Steele, a former Santa Rosa football star, reversed his story at a preliminary hearing and placed responsibility for the marijuana on a third man.

The complicated case began last year, when Hansen was charged with cultivation and possession of marijuana for sale after an August raid netted 62 pot plants growing behind his Lytton Springs Road home.

Following a two-week trial, a Superior Court jury deadlocked 9-3 on the marijuana charges and the judge declared a mistrial July 9.

Hansen triumphed over the fact that a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice was dropped, and cannot be renewed.

Tunney said the conspiracy charge depended on Steele's testimony, and when he failed to appear that charge against Hansen had to be dropped.

Violated the agreement The DA said Steele personally received a subpoena to appear at the trial, and that an arrest warrant was issued for his failure to obey the order.

And because Steele violated the agreement granting him immunity from prosecution in exchange for testimony against Hansen, Tunney said Steele has been charged with cultivation of marijuana.

"Either Hansen or Steele or both were cultivating the marijuana," Tunney said. "Our theory is they both were."

No matter what happens in Hansen's second trial, the DA said Steele will be prosecuted for the pot growing operation.

Nine members of the first trial jury voted to convict Hansen, and two of them came to DA's office immediately after the mistrial was declared, saying they were "very dissatisfied" with that outcome, Tunney said.

The two jurors "felt strongly" that Hansen should be retried, and complimented prosecutor David Dunn for his effort, Tunney said.

'Prejudged the case' According to Tunney, the jurors said that the three jurors who voted to acquit Hansen had "prejudged the case" and "had not listened to the evidence."

Regarding Steele's appearance in the second trial, Tunney said it was obvious "he's on the run." But because Steele is a Sonoma County native, the DA said "he'll be around."

Hansen and Steele were once teammates on the Barristers, a slow-pitch softball team sponsored by Hansen.

Hansen faces sentencing early next month on the only charge he was convicted of last week: possession of a sap (a billyclub-like weapon).

Calling the weapon a memento from his days as a sheriff's deputy, Hansen has said he did not realize it was illegal and predicted that it will be reduced to a misdemeanor at the sentencing.

Fees for new house: $1,200 in city, county

Thinking about building that dream house in the country? If so, be sure to budget an additional $1,200 for fees and permits.

That's about what it will cost for the average 1,500-square-foot home with a 400 square foot garage, according to the fee schedule recently adopted by the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors.

For a house that size, $631 will go to building fees. An additional $520 will be required for fees involved with "environmental health" — the well and septic system.

These fees do not include any Planning Department fees that may be required, nor do they include any fees connected with electrical and/or plumbing inspections.

If the county fees seem steep, Healdsburg is no better a bargain.

Building official Al Longo said the city fees for the same size house would be about the same. Longo said the city and the county use the same guidelines in figuring building permit costs. In the city, there would be no septic system fees.

Housing lot supply shrinks

Healdsburg issued permits for new construction valued at $573,946 last month, with a net revenue to the city of $4,185.

Only three new single family dwelling permits were issued. Building official Al Longo attributed the low number to the fact there are only a few lots remaining in approved subdivisions.

The three houses authorized in June were on lots scattered throughout the city.

Longo added that although construction has slowed a bit recently he expects this month to be a big one and that the remaining lots will soon be sold.

The only new commercial construction is occurring at the intersection of Chiquita Road and Healdsburg Avenue, where Jeff Welsh is building a wine laboratory and some office space.

Camp Rose area to get city water; rates to be set

Residents of the Fitch Mountain's Camp Rose area will be getting city water on an interim basis, alleviating the public health hazard the current Camp Rose water supply creates.

Under mandate from the state to improve the water available to Camp Rose area residents, Sonoma County hired the firm of Winzler and Kelly to study the problem.

Currently, the Camp Rose area receives its water from one shallow well along the Russian River. Health officials warn that the water is unsafe, especially in the winter months when upstream cities discharge sewage into the river.

Winzler and Kelly's engineers evaluated alternative water supply sources and costs and identified two alternatives to the shallow well: drilling additional wells in the Camp Rose area, or buying additional water capacity from the city of Healdsburg.

The city already provides Fitch Mountain with water equivalent to 58 gallons per minute from its Sunset water system. This water is utilized by the McDonough Heights area.

Tying Camp Rose into the Sunset water system will require an estimated additional 50 gallons per minute.

Fitch Mountain Water Company, the privately-owned water system serving the mountain, has received a loan commitment from the state for system improvements. With these funds, improvements to water quality and service for the Fitch Mountain area will occur.

Jack Goble, representing Winzler and Kelly, pointed out Monday that because the people of Fitch Mountain and/or the County of Sonoma may choose to purchase and rehabilitate the entire system at some point in the future, it is important that any improvements made now should be planned to be compatible with long-term rebuilding.

Goble added that tying into the city system would best fit in with a master plan for improvement of the entire Fitch Mountain Water District.

Although the City Council's vote in favor of the temporary tie-in was unanimous, Councilman Bob Haviland interjected a note of caution, warning that often an interim solution becomes a permanent one.

Haviland suggested that fees charged for the water service should cover any possible maintenance or general repairs so that down the line the city would not find itself stuck in a money-losing proposition.

Healdsburg agreed to sell the water, but deferred setting rates to a later date, after further studies can be made.

Other City Council news included the appointment of Keith Shaw to the Airport Commission and Thomas Chambers to the Design Review Commission.

West Star Distributors was awarded the bid for the purchase of a new riding mower on a low bid basis. The new mower will cost $9349.36.

Davenport Foam Application, Inc. was awarded the bid to put a new roof on City Hall for $22,050.

The council also approved a lot split on 134 Sherman Street, with the stipulation that no secondary dwelling units be allowed.

Design Review approves Clos Du Bois building

Clos Du Bois' plans for a new metal building to be erected behind the winery at 202 Haydon St. were approved Tuesday by the Design Review Commission.

The new building will be used for wine storage and will also house one grape press.

In other action, the DRC approved a revised landscaping plan for Pine Tree School, a new nursery school to be located in the old Tamalipeco Restaurant.

The nursery school, which will serve up to 58 children, got approval from the Planning Commission in May.

DRC action on Healdsburg Spa and Salon's sign plan at 524 Healdsburg Ave. was postponed until the Aug. 6 meeting when representatives of the spa failed to appear Tuesday night.

Alumni, Stars, Hounds set for grid camps

The USFL has a new champion and has completed its last summer football season; NFL rookie camps have begun and thoughts elsewhere also are turning to football.

In Healdsburg pigskin action will begin for real in less than two weeks and will continue nonstop to Thanksgiving.

The late summer and early fall football schedule is an especially busy one for Greyhounds Coach Tony Frye.

By the time Frye's Healdsburg High School gridders report for conditioning camp on August 17, his players will no doubt have some catching up to do with their coach. Frye begins two other practice sessions a full month ahead of his players.

Sonoma All-Stars here
Beginning July 29, Healdsburg High School will be the training site for the Sonoma County All-Stars, to be coached by Frye for their August 9 encounter with the Marin All-Stars in the annual Santa Rosa Kiwanis grid classic at SRJC's Bailey Field. The game features players who graduated last June from area high schools.

Alumni gridders
After that Frye will welcome the local participants in Healdsburg's first annual Alumni ni Grid showcase to be played at Rec Park on August 16 followed by a benefit dance that night at the Villa Chanticleer.

Former Greyhounds will begin evening practices on August 2 at the high school. Frye said some positions are still open for both teams in the alumni contest. Healdsburg High School grads may enlist for the game by calling the high school offices (433-3301) and submitting the required $25 fee for insurance, equipment and supplies. Be sure to include the year of graduation.

Former Greyhounds will play one another in the alumni contest with grads of even-numbered years going against grads of odd-numbered years. Frye said space for 30 players on each team is available.

Other communities, notably Sonoma and Napa, have staged highly successful alumni grid games in recent years as the local high school football program's chief fundraiser. Alumni cheerleading and band squads also have been organized at these schools.

Coach Frye emphasized the importance of a successful alumni event. "We're really counting on this since we no longer have 'Fight Night' to support us," he said. The 'Fight Night' benefit each April raised several thousand dollars to purchase new football team equipment but was outlawed this past year.

Beloved Double Days
The Healdsburg Greyhounds junior varsity and varsity teams open the 1985-86 football season on September 14 at Drake High School in San Anselmo.

Full-equipment practice opens August 24 at the high school with no-pads conditioning beginning the week before on August 17.

School opens locally on September 3.

Frye reminded all players to obtain a physical examination and parental consent form at the high school office where they may sign up for a $10 physical exam by Dr. Doug Pile. (Players may also use their own family doctor if they prefer.)

Double day conditioning will be held each day from 9-10 a.m. and 7-8 p.m. When the pads go on Saturday, August 24, the double days will switch to longer sessions.

The Greyhounds will get their first taste of action in a September 5 four-way scrimmage with Lower Lake, Del Norte and El Molino schools at Rec Park.

Rod Foppiano benefit tourney sets goals

Plans are set for the second annual Rod Foppiano Memorial Slowpitch Softball Tournament, to be held next weekend, July 26-28, at Rec Park in Healdsburg.

The 14-team tournament for B-2 and B-3 teams will feature all local teams and will include a wild pig barbecue, spaghetti feed, raffle prizes and a concession stand.

The tournament is a benefit for cancer research with half of this year's proceeds to go directly to a local young cancer victim. The remaining funds will again be donated to the University of California Medical Center for Leukemia research.

The tournament is being organized by the former teammates and their families who played softball with Rod Foppiano who died two years ago from leukemia at age 34.

The first annual tournament held last summer raised over $4,000 for cancer research. This year's goal is $6,000.

Tournament play opens Friday night, July 26 at Rec Park and continues Saturday and Sunday mornings at 8 a.m. It is a double elimination bracket. Individual trophies will be awarded to first place team members, MVP player and All-tourney selections. Team trophies will go to the top four team sponsors.

On Saturday afternoon a big wild pig barbecue dinner including pasta, salad and other fixings will be sold at the park to help raise money for medical research.

Also, over 100 items have been donated by local businesses and individuals to be awarded throughout the three days of softball at Rec Park. And, a ballpark concession stand will be operated for cancer research as well.

Also, other persons wishing to make a donation to the Rod Foppiano Memorial fund may do so by sending contributions to: Rod Foppiano Memorial c/o P.O. Box 875, Healdsburg, CA. 95448.

The complete tournament bracket will be announced next week.

WEEKEND FISHING REPORT
by DICK MOORE

POCKET WATER — Number one stream surface conditioners characterized by pools of water which form downstream from large rocks. Number two small impoundment of water often encountered by anglers when fishing for keys, change, folding money or matches.

LAKE SONOMA — Trout fishing in the lake continues to be good. The boats trolling the flasher and night crawler or small silver lures have been catching limits of trout from 12 to 14 inches. A few larger trout can still be caught in the two to three pound range.

Bass fishing is very good. The bass have lots of quiet water away from the ski boats. Bass are taking just about any popular bass slure. Most bass are small and medium-sized fish but they provide plenty of action on light tackle.

Bluegills are biting worms in the coves.
LAKE MENDOCINO — Most fishing in Lake Mendocino is on the slow side. Cat fish are biting the best during the evening hours. Worms and anchovies are good baits. Stripers are way down in the deep waters this time of year but a few are being caught each day on live minnows or anchovies fished on the bottom.

Bluegills and crappie can be caught if you can find a bunch of them. They are hiding out in the under water trees and along the ledges.

LAKE BERRYESSA — The trout are so deep now you need a dredge to dig them off the bottom. Boats trolling 50 feet down with outriggers are still catching some fish.

Smallmouth bass are biting early and late in the days along with the crappie and bluegills. Catfish are biting worms and night crawlers in the day.

CLEAR LAKE — The big catfish are still catting around. One angler brought in a 10-pound and a 15-pound catfish with several other cats in the two to three pound range. He used nightcrawlers and fished the north shore resort area.

Another fisherman on a two-day vacation pulled in his limit of bass both days. He had two nice bass over four pounds and the rest of his limit averaged two pounds.

Bluegills are biting anything that looks like bait. Lots of the bluegills are around the tullies and docks.

Crappie are hard to find now with only slow action now.

Keep a tight line,
Dick Moore

SALMON — Healdsburg resident Henry Decia recently enjoyed a very productive ocean trip on the local coast as evident in these two photos of him and his trophies. The two salmon are representative of the larger-sized fish party boat sportsmen are reporting at Ft. Bragg and Bodega Bay. These two measured in at three-feet apiece. The abalone in lower photo measured 10 and 3/4 inches across the shell, easily a keeper. Decia made his catch in June as abalone season is closed this month.

Redwood baseball tourney continues this weekend

Youth hardball action continues tonight at Rec Park as seven Minor Division Babe Ruth teams open round two of the 1985 Redwood Empire Baseball Tournament sponsored by the Healdsburg Boys Club.

First round action took place Wednesday and Thursday nights at the park. Healdsburg's Angels and Red Sox teams along with the Westside A's were competing in the tourney as well as Mark West's Phillies and Pirates. Also the Windsor Blue Angels and Rincon Valley All-Stars are included in the tournament.

This is the ninth annual Redwood Tourney to be hosted by the local Boys Club.

Saturday's semifinal games are scheduled for 10 a.m., 1 p.m., 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.

On Sunday, the two survivors from the losers bracket meet at 10 a.m. to see which team advances against the winner's bracket team in a 1 p.m. game.

All game times are approximate.

Earlier this week, Rincon Valley breezed past the Windsor

Royals, 12-1 in the Majors Division Finals on Monday at Rec Park. The Royals earlier got passed the Mark West Orioles, 5-2, and had to get through five games in two days to survive to the finals.

Rincon Valley last won the Redwood Tournament in 1981. Healdsburg's A's won last year and Santa Rosa won in both 1983 and 1982.

Admission to each day of the tournament is $1 donation and a benefit concession stand is open all days at the ballpark.

MINNOWS — California Rivers, Redwood Paddlers and the Geyserville Chamber of Commerce sponsored a second annual Minnow Triathlon and family fun races on the Russian River above Geyserville two weekends ago with all participants again enjoying both the fun competition and the cool river waters. Pictured above prior to the day's first races is: Mike Kumph on bicycle, Dean and Jean Short and Jon Ehlers in mini-kayaks; on land is Andy McDonald, Kristine Ehlers and Tim Short. Prizes were awarded to all top finishers in a number of events, including one featuring the family pet and all proceeds from the day were donated to Friends of the River.

HHS tennis girls thank sponsors

The Healdsburg High School Greyhounds girls tennis team is set to defend its Sonoma County League pennant with practices set to begin next month under Coach Celso Rosales.

The large majority of last year's singles and doubles players will be returning this season.

The players and coach wish to thank several local businesses which support the team in its annual tournament to raise funds for equipment and supplies. These firms are:

P&S Truck Repair, Northbay Savings, R.H. Durler Insurance, Passalacqua and Mazzoni, Dry Creek Vineyards, Mike Welty, Milt Brandt, Westec, Ronald Conte & Co, and Lucky Dog.

Sonoma County Fair Highlights

Daily horse races, free track admission

Free track admission, higher purses and therefore better horses, and free seminars about racing, betting and handicapping are the highlighted changes at the traditional horse racing meet at the Sonoma County Fair July 22 through August 4.

For the first time entry to the race track will be free to everyone, every day. Post time is 1 p.m. daily and the betting windows open at 12:30 p.m.

The fair will be offering a total of $1,068,886 in purses to the horsemen running their horses in the 169 races over 13 days of racing.

(There is no racing on Sunday, July 28.)

There will be nine Thoroughbred races plus two Quarter Horse and two Appaloosa races daily except Tuesdays. On each Tuesday one Appaloosa race will be replaced by an Arabian race and all other races will remain the same.

The betting schedule allows exotic bets of $2 Exactas on the first and second races; $5 Exactas on the third, sixth and eighth, tenth, twelfth and thirteenth races; a $2 Daily Double on the fourth and fifth; and a Pick Six on the fifth through tenth.

Among the trainers who are expected to have horses running at the Sonoma County Fair are Dent Caton, Jerry Dutton, Walter Greenman and N.S. Retherford.

If the free entry to track area encourages some novices to enter the area the fair is prepared.

Under the direction of the new director of racing, Rick Cain, special seminars will be held each morning to give general information about what's involved in racing, betting and handicapping.

The seminars will start at 11:45 a.m. in front of the track grandstand and include a brief tour of the track area, a more intensive tour of one different area each day (vet's barn, paddock, totalizer equipment etc.) and a guest professional to speak about his or her area of racing.

Guest speakers will include trainers, owners, jockeys and racing officials. The seminar will end with a preview of that days' races including tips on who and what to watch.

Daily fairgrounds admission is $4 for adults, including free admission to the track. A special season pass is available for $35, a savings of $17.

Local pullers welcomed for 4-wheel competition

The Cardiss Giant 4x4 car crusher will be featured at this year's 4-Wheel Drive Pull at the Sonoma County Fair in two shows on Sunday, August 4 at 2 and 6 p.m. in the Chris Beck Arena. The tickets are $6 and $5.

The Sonoma County Fair runs July 22 to August 4.

The 4x4 giant car crusher stands 12-feet high with tires over five feet high. The giant car crusher, Chevy's answer to "Big Foot" will crush cars at the conclusion of each performance. The crusher will also be on display at Biddulph Chevrolet in Santa Rosa the weekend of July 27 and 28.

Although many professional pullers will compete in the event, local 4-wheelers are encouraged to participate.

For local competitors the stock and super stock classes are recommended. The stock class is for street legal trucks with street legal tires and no internal engine modifications.

The super stock class allows internal modification, but is still a street-legal truck.

Both classes run open headers and for first-time pullers, safety requirements such as drive train loops and breakaway kill switches will be waived.

These classes are a specifically designed part of the show to involve the local puller. First and second place trophies in all weight classes (3500, 4500 and 5800) will be awarded.

The professional pullers will compete in the modified and super-modified classes for a purse of $5,000 for the two shows.

Contestants must be 18 years of age, or at least 16 with parental consent. Anyone interested in competing in the pull may pick up registration forms at the Administration Building at the Fairgrounds.

For further information, call Dave Matthews at (209) 575-3413.

Admission to the county fair is 14 for adults, $1 for young people 7-12, and free to children six and under, and military uniform.

The outside gate admission includes admission to the race track and all entertainment and attractions except the rodeo, destruction derby and four-wheel tractor pull.

Grandstand seating at the race track is $2.

A special season pass is available for $35. The season pass covers daily admission to the fairgrounds and the race track.

Rodeo features top stock and two trickrider shows

A special team of trick riders and several unridden bulls are among the highlights of this year's Growney Brothers Rodeo at the Sonoma County Fair.

The rodeo will be on Friday, July 26, at 8 p.m. and Saturday, July 27, at 8 p.m. in the Chris Beck Arena. All seats are $5 and tickets are on sale now at the Fairgrounds box office.

The bulls, which have successfully dumped riders before the eight second qualifying time, are Red Rock and Gold Buckle, both national final bulls from Growney Brothers stock. Another national final bull which will be featured at the Fair's rodeo is Spitfire.

The trick riders will perform at both rodeos with a variety of specialized riding and roping stunts.

Events at the rodeo will include saddle bronc riding, bareback riding, bull riding, calf riding, steer wrestling, girl's barrel racing and team roping.

John Growney, owner and operator of Growney Brothers Rodeo, has a background in rodeo competition that started in junior rodeo events. He progressed to win the bullriding title at the Cow Palace in San Francisco in 1976.

Growney began his rodeo company in 1978 and has created a stock company that has a high level of respectability and excellence. This is confirmed by the number of Growney Brothers bucking horses and bulls that have been selected for the National Finals Rodeo.

Several people are vital to the operation of Growney Brothers which is based in Red Bluff. Don Kish, livestock manager, cares for the animals at the ranch as well as on the road. He doubles as pickup man and flanker in the rodeos.

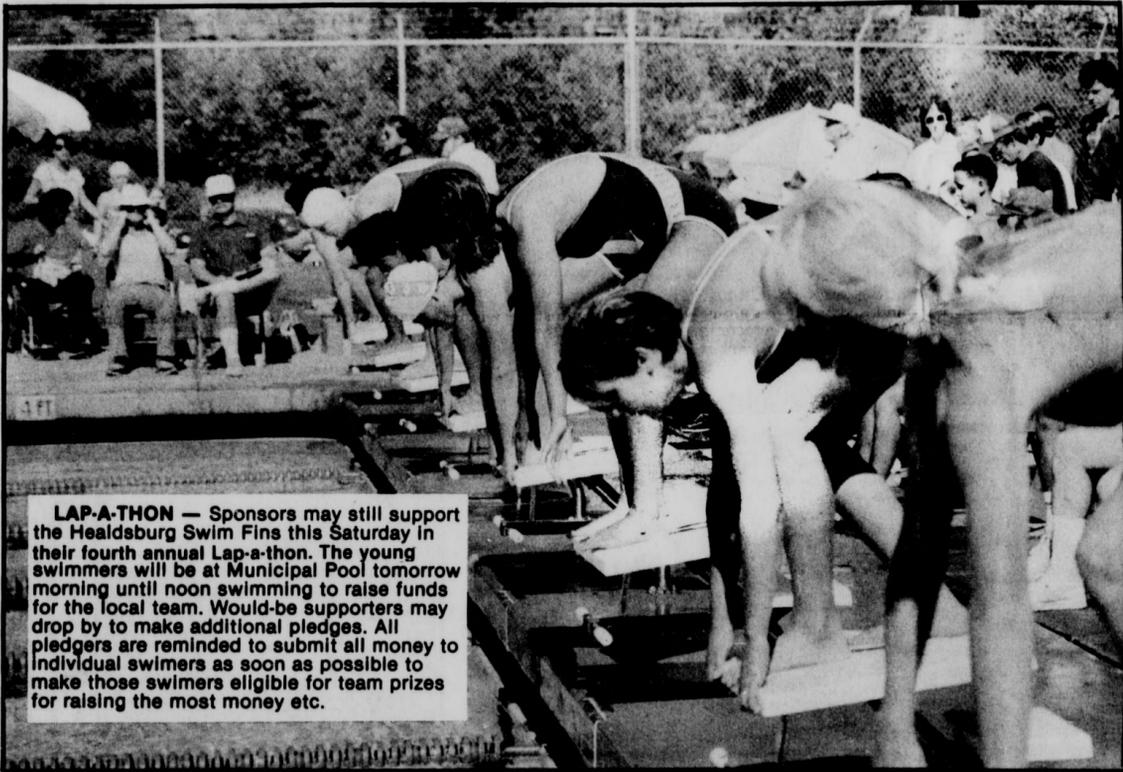

Younger brother, Mike Growney, takes charge at some of the rodeos during the busy season. He also serves as a pickup man. Their father, George, owns an auto dealership and makes sure things run smoothly at the ranch whenever the crew is on the road.

Harvy Camacho, in addition to running his own cattle business, is responsible for the management of timed events at the rodeos. John's mother, Velma, and four sisters are all strong Growney Brothers supporters.

The Sonoma County Fair runs July 22 through August 4.

Admission to the Sonoma County Fair is $4 for adults, $1 for young people age 7-12, and free to children six and under and military in uniform.

Reserve seating in the grandstand at the race track is $2.

LAP-A-THON — Sponsors may still support the Healdsburg Swim Fins this Saturday in their fourth annual Lap-a-thon. The young swimmers will be at Municipal Pool tomorrow morning until noon swimming to raise funds for the local team. Would-be supporters may drop by to make additional pledges. All pledgers are reminded to submit all money to individual swimmers as soon as possible to make those swimmers eligible for team prizes for raising the most money etc.

Kaeding wins again; Petaluma race next

After Chico's Shane Scott edged NARC point leader Brent Kaeding Friday night at his hometown track in a NRAC Miller High Life series feature event, Kaeding came back the next night to win the Saturday night Main Event.

The win was Kaeding's 12th NARC win of the year, pushing his season-high wins record up a notch.

Kaeding, of Campbell, and other top NARC sprint racers will head to Petaluma Fairgrounds Speedway for the next NARC points race.

The July 20 Saturday night of dirt oval action will begin at 7 p.m. with qualifying with racing to begin at 8 p.m.

Community news

Brush, treasurer; Milt Lazarus, area representative; Tom Herzberg, president; Will Johnson, past-president; and Mike McDonald, vice-president.

Rotary Club will send fifteen young people abroad

During the coming fall, 15 young people will be chosen from communities in District 513 of Rotary International (comprised of 59 north coastal communities between Menlo Park and Crescent City — including Healdsburg) to study in another country through the 1986-87 college year.

Healdsburg area students who would like to become student ambassadors of good will aboard may receive more information about the Rotary Foundation Scholarship Program or obtain a set of application forms by calling John Rich at 433-5903.

The 15 winners will be those who, in the opinion of the district selection committee, give promise of being the best ambassadors of good will to send abroad. Though a candidate is expected to be a good scholar, selection does not depend solely upon grades or upon financial need. This is part of a world-wide program among 159 nations of the free world to promote international understanding and world peace through the college-age ambassadors. In addition to graduate and undergraduate scholarships, there are some for older persons, journalists, special vocations and teachers of the handicapped. Children of Rotarians are not eligible.

A qualified candidate may submit his or her application to any Rotary club in the Rotary District in which he lives, works or attends college. Applications, available now, must be submitted to a Rotary club by October 1, 1985.

Rotary Foundation Scholarships include round-trip transportation between scholar's home and study city, all required academic feeds, some necessary education supplies, on-campus double-occupancy room (or approved off-campus accommodations if on-campus housing is not offered), on-campus board (or off-campus if the study institution does not offer meals), limited educational travel during the award year and limited contingency expenses.

Low-cost vaccinations for pets

Pet Prevent-A-Care, Inc., a low-cost mobile dog and cat vaccination clinic, will be in Healdsburg on Tuesday, July 30, 5:30-6:30 p.m. in the D-Mart parking lot, 1345 Healdsburg Ave.

All of the major vaccines for dogs and cats are offered at affordable prices. Flea products and tests for heartworm disease and intestinal parasites in dogs are available. Clinics are held under the direct supervision of a licensed veterinarian. Cats must be brought in boxes and dogs on leashes.

Anyone unable to attend the clinic may call 838-4303 for future clinic information.

Russian River Rider Playday on Sunday

The Russian River Riders are holding a Western and English Playday on Sunday, July 21 at Hoofbeat Park, corner of Kinley and Dry Creek roads. Starting time is 8:30 a.m.

There will be halter classes for Western and English, as well as a hunter hack class in English. Cost for the day is $3.50 per class for non-members and non-point members; $2.50 per class for pointmembers. There is also an all-day fee of $5 for point members.

The playday classes are designed so that participants going to bigger shows in the near future can get some practice. The playday is a family event.

Free family film at library

The Healdsburg Regional Library is offering a film program for the whole family on Wednesday, July 31 at Healdsburg Elementary School, corner of First and North streets.

Walt Disney's Alice in Wonderland will be shown beginning at 7 p.m. and running 72 minutes. Sponsored by the Friends of the Healdsburg Library, the movie program is free of charge and is open to all ages. For more information, call children's librarian Patti Lewis at 433-3772.

Try Ron's Place

Have you been looking for a nice little place to have a good, quick meal? How about an old-fashioned milk shake with real ice cream? Does homemade pie sound tasty?

If the answer to any of the above is yes, try Ron's Place.

Ron and Wilda Johnson are the new owners of Ron's Place, a family restaurant located in the building that was formerly the Country Kitchen, next to Sprouse Reitz, on Healdsburg Avenue.

Although Ron and Wilda have spent the past 25 years running Johnson's Market in Geyserville, they have always wanted to own a small restaurant.

Ron says, "Twenty-five years ago, just before going into the grocery business, we almost opened a small restaurant but it just didn't quite work out."

Featuring a breakfast and lunch menu, Ron's Place is open from 6:30 a.m.-3 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 8 a.m.-1 p.m. on Sunday.

They offer a breakfast special for seniors that is a real deal. Two strips of bacon, one egg, two slices of toast, coffee or milk for only $1.35.

Other offerings on the extensive breakfast menu include sausage, eggs, waffles, pancakes and linguisa. Currently the house breakfast specialty is biscuits and gravy, prepared the homemade way.

The home touch is what makes Ron's Place so special. Wilda, who enjoys cooking and baking, makes terrific pies. And the chili at Ron's is not just chili but a meal in itself, with mushrooms and peppers and onions.

Burgers, fries, deli sandwiches and differnt specials everyday highlight the lunch menu.

Another nice feature at Ron's is food to go, from either the air-conditioned interior of the restaurant or the convenient outside window for walk-up service.

Next time your mouth waters for a good meal but you don't have all day to wait, try Ron's Place.

Centennial sells Piombo subsidiary for $25 million

Santa Rosa based Centennial Savings and Loan Association has sold its Piombo Corporation subsidiary for $25 million in a combination of cash and notes to Sierra Diversified Investors of Cameron Park. The sale will result in a profit of more than $7 million to Centennial.

Piombo, a 60-year-old engineering and heavy construction company, was acquired in January 1983 by Centennial as a result of regulations allowing the diversification of savings and loan activities.

Piombo helped make California California history with its involvement in the construction of the Golden Gate Bridge, the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, the Oakland Coliseum, San Francisco International Airport, major portions of Interstates 580 and 680, and numerous residential and commercial projects throughout Northern California.

Sierra Diversified Investors is engaged in commercial construction and real estate development. With the addition of Piombo, Sierra will pursue various joint ventures, including excavation and building of commercial centers in California and Arizona. The management of Piombo will remain the same and the immediate goal will be to make a smooth transition in all areas. The sale of Piombo is consistent with the directions of Centennial and the current regulatory environment. The sale enables Centennial to focus on its primary activities, which are to serve depositors and shareholders with its savings, lending and real estate activities. Centennial reported assets of $344,000,000 as of Dec. 31, 1984, with total savings accounts of $328,000,000. The company and its subsidiaries experienced a net operating loss of $3,314,000 in 1984.

With summer just around the corner, it's time to get that backyard swimming pool into shape for the hot weather ahead. And the crew at Healdsburg Pool Service are just the ones to do the job.

With more than 17 years of pool maintenance experience under his belt, John Camilleri (far left, pictured with wife Sandi and assistant Kirk Richardson) can handle just about any pool or spa related job, no matter how big or small.

If your pool's plaster is stained and could use an acid wash to get it sparkling clean, May's warm, dry weather is perfect for draining the pool and getting the job done — and John and Kirk will get it done right.

Spring is also a good time to clean-out the pool filter, to make sure the acid/chlorine balance in the pool is just right for swimming, and to add conditioner to the pool's water.

Healdsburg Pool Service can meet each customer's individual needs, from a one-time acid wash to weekly upkeep and maintenance.

The local business also sells top-of-the-line spas and spa equipment, can handle the installation job thoroughly and professionally, then service the unit periodically, as needed.

In addition to performing regularly scheduled maintenance on your pool or spa, John can install and repair all brands of pumps, motors and filters, and is a factory certified installation and repair technician for the complete line of Arneson Pool Sweeps.

For all you pool or spa needs, give the crew at Healdsburg Pool Service a call today.

Housing gets a little more affordable

Housing affordability in California improved during the first quarter of 1985, reaching its highest level since 1979, according to a report recently prepared by the California Association of Realtors.

Affordability remains a significant problem, however, despite the recent decrease of mortgage interest rates, CAR said.

The Housing Affordability Index

calculated in the report compared affordability in the first quarter of 1985 to affordability in each of the previous years from 1978. During the first quarter, 34 percent of California households could afford to purchase the state's median-priced home at current mortgage financing rates.

"This is up from 1984 when 33 percent of California households could afford to purchase the median-priced home," noted Raymond D. Spinelli, president of the 100,000-member real estate association.

By contrast, nationwide, 48 percent of households could afford to purchase the median-priced home in the first quarter. This was an increase from the 43 percent posted in 1984.

For the first quarter, the California median home price totaled $112,531. With the current interest rate on a fixed-rate loan at 12.39 percent, a minimum income of $38,120 is necessary to qualify to purchase.

The median home price nationally was $73,933 during the first quarter, enabling a homebuyer with a minimum income of only $25,048 to qualify for a loan.

Several factors have played a role in the gains in affordability. "The continued decline in mortgage interest rates, rising family income and only modest increases in home prices contributed to the improved affordability picture during the first quarter," said Joel Singer, CAR's

YEAR	MEDIAN HOME PRICE	INTEREST RATE	MONTHLY MORTGAGE PAYMENT	MINIMUM INCOME	PERCENT CALIFORNIA HOUSEHOLDS THAT CAN AFFORD TO BUY
1978	$69,800	9.58	$ 473	$18,920	45%
1979	$82,880	10.92	$ 627	$25,080	35%
1980	$98,040	12.95	$ 865	$34,600	24%
1981	106,040	15.12	$1,081	$43,240	17%
1982	110,020	15.38	$1,036	$41,440	22%
1983	112,592	12.85	$ 985	$39,400	28%
1984	112,472	12.49	$ 960	$38,400	33%
1st Qtr 1985	112,531	12.39	$ 953	$38,120	34%

vice president of Planning, Research and Economics.

"What's more, the gap has closed slightly between the California and U.S. figures," he continued. "The median home price during the first quarter of 1985 registered 52 percent higher than the U.S. median price." Although this difference is still significant, it is less when compared to the past five years when California median prices have averaged typically 60 percent higher than the U.S. median price.

The study says first-time homebuyers are the hardest hit by affordability problems. Buyers who currently own a home have a large advantage over first-time buyers, since often the sale of an existing home can unlock a large amount of equity which can be applied to their next purchase.

Housing affordability varies widely among California's many distinct regions. The San Francisco Bay area, including Marin and San Mateo, registers the lowest affordability with only 31 percent of the area's residents able to purchase the median-priced home of $136,253.

The most affordable region is the Sacramento area where 52 percent of the area's residents could afford to purchase.

Drilco names new managers

Five new regional managers have been named as part of a personnel reorganization in the United States field operations of Drilco, division of Smith International, Inc. The changes were announced by Roger Matheson, director of domestic operations for Drilco.

Healdsburg and Anchorage, Alaska. Drilco, headquartered in Houston, designs, manufactures, markets, and services a variety of downhole drilling tools and surface equipment throughout the world.

Smith International is a worldwide supplier of products and services to the oil and gas industry for drilling, completion and production, and to the mining industries.

Larry Luckow was appointed western regional manager over operations in Bakersfield,

Masini and Selzle

Masini and Selzle service and appliance store is at home in its new location at 121 A. North St. (right across the street from Healdsburg Professional Center) where it moved last February. The new store gives owners Ron and Sue Wallace and Mary Licu (Ron's sister), much more space to show off their major appliances and offers easier access to customers.

But although the location is new, Ron's motto remains the same: "If it heats, cools or moves air, we service it." From refrigeration to services and sales, Masini and Selzle can take care of your needs.

Ron, who spends most of his time making house calls (Mary and Sue, pictured here, run the showroom), say it's a plus factor to have been born and raised in this area, as he can quickly find the location of jobs he's been called to. "When someone says 'I live out in Alexander Valley about two miles south of the old Joe Grace place,' I know where they mean," says Ron.

Ron has his contractor's license for both heating and air conditioning, electrical contracting and installing and servicing refrigeration for anything from markets to restaurants and wineries. Also, the shop carries all major appliances by General Electric and Speed Queen.

Masini and Selzle is open Monday-Saturday and Ron says, "We'll go to out-of-the-way places if someone's got a job that has to be done."

★ Offshore oil deal

 moratorium that has protected the Central and Northern California coasts from oil drilling for the past four years.

Taylor said it remained "uncertain" on Tuesday whether there were enough votes on the House committee to renew the moratorium.

Bosco, a Democrat from Occidental, said last month that he doubted the votes were there and that a compromise was needed to prevent Hodel from leasing the entire coast.

"His judgment may be right on that," Gambill said, referring to Bosco's assessment of the political climate on Capitol Hill.

"This is our coast" "The consensus here may be that we don't care what the House Appropriations Committee says, this is our coast and we don't want oil rigs," Gambill said.

He also disputed the contention that Northern California's resources must be tapped to meet America's energy needs.

Gambill said the Reagan administration is trying to eliminate Amtrak ("eight times more fuel-efficient than a 747") and ignoring other means of meeting the nation's energy needs, such as conservation, efficiency and energy alternatives.

"It's obvious that the objective is to use as much oil as possible," Gambill said.

That strategy also happens to be the most profitable for the oil companies, which have been lobbying Congress to open up the California coast, he said.

Fight not over
 Gambill said the agreement may mark the start, rather than the end of the fight over offshore oil drilling.

Referring to a 30-day period set aside for local comment on the compromise, Gambill said he expects a strong one from the North Coast.

"We feel the coast belongs to everybody, to the world," he said. "I don't think most people are going to take kindly to having it bargained away."

Taylor said he did not think the offshore oil agreement would hurt Bosco in future elections.

"It wasn't an issue we had a whole lot of choice on," he said.

Bosco opted to make a deal that protected some of the coast "rather than gamble and risk losing it all," Taylor said.

James Buchanan has been the only bachelor to serve as President of the United States.

Man jailed in child molest

A 32-year-old transient was arrested early Monday morning after allegedly burglarizing a Center Street home and molesting a child he found in a bedroom of the house.

Carmen Flores Guerrero, 32, was arrested at 7:22 a.m. Monday in front of police headquarters, after identifying some personal items which linked him to the crime scene.

According to police records, a 43-year-old Center Street resident heard noises outside his house about 4:15 a.m. that morning, and went outside to look around.

As the man came around the back end of the house, he saw what appeared to be a backpack sitting on the ground near a bedroom window. When the resident moved closer to backpack, he looked in the window and saw a man in one of his children's bed, allegedly attempting to molest the child.

By the time the man was able to get back into his house, the man — described as a bearded, longhaired Mexican in his mid-20s — had fled the scene.

Items inside the man's backpack — which was left at the scene — were later identified by Guerrero as belonging to him, and he was arrested on suspicion of burglarizing a residence and of committing lewd and lascivious acts with a child.

Guerrero was transported to Sonoma County Jail to await trial on the charges.

 the least, at 185 cfs (cubic feet per second)."

Proposals submitted by the Water Agency call for the "coordinated use" of the waters stored in Lake Mendocino and Lake Sonoma, which would under normal summer conditions reduce the amount of water flowing down the Russian River from Lake Mendocino to Healdsburg.

Agricultural, residential, municipal and recreational users of the Russian River — united in their opposition to the Water Agency's plan — banded together under the auspices of the RRWRPA, and became official "interveners" in the hearings before the state Board.

Over the course of the hearings, members of the association demanded that minimum summertime flow levels in the river remain between 200 and 225 cfs, well above the 150 cfs proposed by the water agency.

'Stipulated agreement'
 In the final hours of the hearing, the Water Agency and state Department of Fish & Game entered into a "stipulated agreement" — a compromise which would set 185 cfs as the minimum flow in average rain years.

The RRWRPA, the United Anglers of California and Mendocino County interests all voiced opposition to the stipulated agreement for differing reasons, but it is expected that the state board will give serious consideration to the compromise proposal.

A decision on the controversial river flow case had originally been expected by July 1, but state officials recently announced that a ruling will not be forthcoming until November at the earliest.

★ Injured boy's foot

 while someone else tried to stop bleeding from the injured youth's arm.

★ Pesticide

 State officials still have not publicly identified the growers responsible for the poisonings, she said.
 Nielsen needs Senate Rules Committee approval to introduce his pesticide penalties bill this late in the session, Chartrand said.
 A similar measure and other bills dealing with the watermelon poisonings have been introduced in the Assembly, she said.

Lewers said someone — possibly Sedeno — found the boy's foot, which was put in a plastic bag, then hurried to Lewer's father-in-law's (Bill Ponzio) home, where it was placed in the freezer.

Lewers said he and others on the scene managed to calm Molina, who was able to give them his name, age and where he lived.

Although an ambulance was on the scene quickly, Lewers said, "Sitting there it seemed like forever."

Tafuya and Arreguin were treated at Healdsburg General Hospital and released.

Molina is the son of Renda and John Walters of Healdsburg.

★ Rec Commission

 Steve Phelps, a recreation commissioner and manager of the Lake Sonoma Recreation Area for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Following their meeting in the Corps' administrative offices, the city commissioners went on a tour of the facilities, including a ride in the patrol boat — with Phelps at the helm.

During the ride around the lake, Puckett said Phelps stopped another boater for going too fast.

Councilman Ben Collins, who as a candidate last year blasted the council for holding a retreat at Sea Ranch, said he had no problem with the Rec Commission's meeting site.

"I think this is a little different (than the retreat)," Collins said.

"This was more of an informational tour around the lake.

"I'm kind of sorry that they didn't invite me," added Collins, a fisherman and former Recreation Commissioner.

'Kidded me about it'
 Puckett said Collins "kidded me about it" but voiced no objection to the out of town meeting.

The $50 fee for the Villa's group picnic area was instituted to discourage people who reserve the Villa itself for a wedding from also signing up for the picnic area to keep it from being used, Puckett said.

Previously, there was no charge for the group picnic area for local residents renting the Villa.

Puckett said Healdsburg residents may still use the group picnic area for free during the week, and individual picnic areas are always available at the Villa.

There is not enough parking at the Villa to accommodate a wedding inside the Villa and a large picnic outside, Puckett said.

To alleviate that problem, a group picnic area will be developed this summer in Giorgi Park, south of the tennis courts.

Also, an outdoor volleyball court — the first in the city — will be installed this summer east of the Giorgi Park tennis courts, Puckett said.

Sunday, July 7

13:02 — A Santa Rosa man is pulled from the waters of the Russian River by lifeguards at Memorial Beach, but efforts of rescuers to revive the man are fruitless, and he is later declared dead at Healdsburg General Hospital.

15:50 — Citizens report a hit-and-run accident on Healdsburg Avenue near Front Street.

19:01 — The mother of two pre-teenage girls reports that while the youngsters were at Giorgi Park, a male subject walked into the women's restroom at the park with his pants down, and tried to prevent the girls from leaving. When the girls began screaming, the man fled the scene, apparently with his pants still down. Officers were unable to locate the subject.

19:55 — Noises described as either firecrackers or gunshots are heard in the vicinity of Johnson and Lincoln streets. All available units are dispatched to the area, but officers are unable to locate anything suspicious.

Monday, July 8

15:11 — A 20-year-old Santa Rosa resident arrested for allegedly driving under the influence of alcohol after reportedly driving into a house in the 13800 block of Healdsburg Avenue.

LOCAL DOLLAR

Parades, Fireworks, Vacations!

Parades, fireworks, flags and vacations represent the month of July. March over to your local merchant and view the hot summer specials. He is proudly parading his goods and services, and most importantly, pledges to be there tomorrow to support the sale with service. You will be glad you shopped locally. Vacations are important and while you are visiting other communities, compare them. Your home community has a lot of unique qualities that add to your every day life. It is good to get away, but it is nice to come home and see the friendly smiles and receive the warm handshakes of your local merchants.

Shopping at your Local stores benefits the entire community.

A portion of what you spend is returned in taxes to help pay for the services you enjoy having here — police, fire, and streets are just a few. Your merchants depend on you; you depend on them. Take time to get to know these neighbors of yours — they'll appreciate it, and you'll enjoy shopping close to home.
