Playing matchmaker a dangerous position

DEAR ABBY: When is it proper to play Cupid?

My best friend, "Marsha," lost her husband a few months ago. He had a massive heart attack with no warning whatsoever. He was healthy and athletic.

A few years ago, Marsha and my cousin, "Marc," met at my daughter's christening. It was obvious that there was a strong mutual attraction between them, but they were both seeing other people at the time, so nothing came of it, and they both eventually married other people.

I just learned that Marc and his wife are getting divorced. I don't want to be involved with someone else before they have a chance to get together.

When Marsha is ready, contact Marc and ask him, "What's new?" and "Are you looking for a new partner?"

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old future bride with a small problem. My mother and father were divorced when I was 16, and my mother married "Les" a year later.

My mother and father were divorced when I was 16, and my mother married "Les" a year later. Les has been a wonderful stepfather to me.
