GREAT REASONS TO READ THE TENNESSEAN ALL WEEK LONG

MARCH 27 — 31

Diploma and Debt

With college tuition going up and federal aid more scarce, loans are the only way many students can afford an education. On graduation day, they walk away with a diploma and a huge debt burden. Reporter Lisa Benavides talks to students who are about to graduate about how they are coping. In Monday's Tennessean.

And the Winner is ...

Will the Oscars be a box of chocolates for Forrest Gump or will dark horse Pulp Fiction steal the show Monday night? Get the inside scoop on the Oscar winners in Tuesday's Living section.

You Can Still Eat Your Veggies

The California rains damaged spring crops, but consumers will still be able to celebrate the season. Read food writer Anne Byrn in Wednesday's Food section.

And Then There Were Four

College basketball gets down to the NCAA Final Four tournaments with the men's semifinals in Seattle and the women's semifinals in Minneapolis on Saturday. Read the previews leading up to the action. All week in Sports.
